

Quick Blast Offensive Zone Face Off

Notes / Coaching Points

Description

Here is an offensive zone face off play to use if you have a player that has an exceptional one-timer. To set up, the shooter will be set off the hash marks at about the top of the circle on their off-hand so they can receive the pass in a good shooting position from the other winger. The center tries to win the face off directly back to one of the wingers. If the puck goes to the player closer to the boards they should pass it right away to the shooter for a one time shot. If the center wins it straight back to the shooter then they go ahead and shoot. The defensive player has to line up on the hash marks to interfere with any of the opponents that are rushing out to the shooters. If the center loses the face off, then the defense has to skate right back to position and the two wingers have to apply pressure.
